QUARTERLY

The Superior-General writes...

Yes to Youth!

The reason this CBSQ may arrive a little late is because I have just recovered after returning from the Youth Pilgrimage to Walsingham! Lying in my tent on the last Friday at 6am in the pouring rain and driving wind is not my idea of fun, especially when I turn on the radio and hear the BBC weather forecast: 'It will be bright and sunny all over the country today!' Whilst loading and unloading the camping equipment in the pouring rain and trying to get everything dried off before it goes into storage for next year, I asked myself, 'Will there be a next year?' Is all this effort, the risk assessments, the child protection forms, the fund raising, the form-filling, the sleepless nights, really worth all the effort? Should CBS really (as we have for the past two years) make significant grants towards the youth pilgrimage?

The answer is a resounding 'Yes', not just because over 800 young Anglicans joined 600 Roman Catholics for a joint act of worship and commitment; or because each Mass throughout the week was stunning – packed with joy-filled worship, excellent music, and thought-provoking presentations and homilies; or that the daily bible study still has my own young people asking me questions, nor even because of the grace-filled address Fr Philip North, the Shrine administrator, gave on Wednesday night, but because of the evening of Reconciliation and the all-night vigil before the Blessed Sacrament! Our group's assigned hour wasn't particularly a grave-yard slot: some had given more than an hour, or most of, or all of the night. The Youth Pilgrimage was certainly worth all the effort, and more besides, to have, at any one time, more than 200 young people in silent prayer before the Blessed Sacrament, in an act of commitment and love to Jesus in the Eucharist. Devotion to Jesus in the Eucharist is not only the first Object of CBS, it's the very point of our creation – to worship the God who loves us and reveals himself in Jesus.

Such love and devotion is never, and can never be for nothing: the Father always gives the increase to things devoted to his Son, but we must also ask another question: 'What is the future for Catholics in the Church of England?' The General Synod in July made an historic decision not only for Catholics, but also for classical Anglicanism. In rejecting any provision for Catholics once women bishops are invented in the C of E, it is no longer possible to say that we are a 'broad church'. The group which must now come up with a Code of Practice are set with a non-task, because the ones who it is meant to be for have already said that any Code of Practice is unacceptable; it will only serve to satisfy the conscience of those who have no conscience.

What's also alarming in this crisis in the Church, is the abuse of language. In what way do the group called Inclusive Church imagine they are being inclusive? There was a deliberate and unchristian attempt to exclude those who in conscience (and as Archbishop Williams described it, in obedience) are unable to accept what they say we must accept. How does the group called Affirming Catholicism 'affirm' the catholic faith? To deliberately reject what the Catholic Church teaches and does, and has always taught and done, is to 'protest' against that faith. How does the group which calls itself the Society of Catholic Priests define 'Catholic'? It really is a question of logic, what the philosopher Wittgenstein called 'language gone on holiday'.

Whatever happens now, whatever the synod or the politicians who have hijacked it decide, we can clearly see that the dye has been cast. We are left with three options: to jump ship and join other ecclesial bodies; to buckle down and do our own idiosyncratic thing; or to come together as a cohesive group united in Faith and Order. The laity have done their part over the years nobly and faithfully; the priests have given of their lives and their families sacrificially to the Catholic Cause. If there is to be cohesion, or any way forward in faith, then it is now down to the clergy, especially the bishops, the Catholic Bishops. We must pray and encourage them to be united and work together- by which I mean, together. All too often they have done their own thing in their own idiosyncratic way, thinking they each have the answer- arrogantly thinking they are the Moses to lead us through the desert. Until the Bishops, especially the diocesan bishops, snap out of their arrogance and return to the service of the Church and their Lord, joining as a collegial body of Bishops in the Church, we are all at 'sea'. For the sake of the children and for God's sake, they must join together in humility and love. Pray for the unity for our Catholic Bishops and the unity of the Church for which Jesus prayed.

VESTMENTS FOR CONCELEBRATION

CBS has 20 sets of vestments in white, red and purple that can be borrowed for a fee of £1 per vestment. Applications for their use must be made to the Superior-General. The vestments are kept in South London, and must be collected and returned there by the borrower.

THAT IS THE QUESTION!

It was in the wake of the AIDS epidemic in the 1980s that the practice of intinction at Holy Communion took off: the action of receiving the Host and dipping it into the Precious Blood before consuming. It was the recommended way of receiving Holy Communion given by the Archbishops and Bishops at that time to assuage anxieties about contracting HIV. Although some did intinct before this, it was not as widespread. A more recent innovation for the more discerning priest is to take the Host from the person and dip it into the chalice himself before posting it directly into the person's mouth. One could be tempted to go into the arguments about hygiene, alcohol and all that; or the greater risk to the priest who must consume the precious remains; or the other hygiene question of dirty fingers going into the Precious Blood. But to understand the illogic and irrational behaviour of those who practice intinction, let's look at the Eucharistic theological nonsense this type of reception displays.

In the Blessed Sacrament of the Eucharist, Jesus is present, Godhead, Manhood, Soul and Divinity. Where the Blessed Sacrament is, Jesus is. And he is entirely present under both forms of Bread and Wine; indeed, to receive one is to receive both. People who are not able to drink alcohol are not missing out by not receiving from the Chalice; neither are coeliacs (who cannot eat wheat) missing out by not being able to receive the Host. To receive one is to receive the other, the privilege that is afforded us, is to receive both now and again.

Almighty God, look, we pray, on the face of your beloved Son, and for the sake of his merits mercifully hear the prayers which throughout our Confraternity we continually offer to you; and grant us unity, a true faith, and a life agreeable to your will; through Jesus Christ our Lord.
